

Organic Chemistry: Hydrocarbons

Hydrocarbons are compounds made up of hydrogen and carbon atoms. They are divided into alkanes (single bonds), alkenes (double bonds), and alkynes (triple bonds). These are the basis for organic chemistry, which studies carbon-containing compounds.